

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Embodiments of the invention generally provide a method for immersing a substrate into a fluid solution. The method includes loading a substrate into a receiving member configured to support the substrate in a face down orientation, tilting the receiving member to a first tilt angle measured from horizontal, displacing the receiving member toward the fluid solution, and tilting the receiving member to a second tilt angle measured from horizontal during the displacing.

253845_1